Dear SSCI Member,

The American Journal of the Medical Sciences (AJMS), the official journal of the Southern Society for Clinical Investigation, is seeking articles for upcoming issues. The AJMS (Impact Factor 3.1) publishes work that addresses clinical and translational topics related to adult internal medicine and its subspecialties. Editorials, commentaries, letters-to-the-editor, full length articles, and short reviews are welcomed.

During the recent Southern Regional Meeting held in New Orleans this past month, I learned about the exciting work that SSCI members are conducting. Please consider submitting that work to our journal. We commit to returning reviews related to articles submitted by SSCI members within two weeks after manuscript submission. Importantly, SSCI members will not be asked to pay for page charges.

Articles can be submitted to the following Journal link:

I look forward to receiving your submissions, which I predict will further enhance the quality of the AJMS, a journal that has remained a repository of American medicine for 200 years.

Sincerely,

Jesse Roman, MD
