Dear SSCI Members,

In a recent audit conducted to determine SSCI's capacity for philanthropy, many members were asked to identify the aspect of membership that meant the most to them. The answers came in different words and turns of phrase but unanimously cited SSCI's unique ability to nurture the career development of gifted young physician-scientists as its most significant commitment and accomplishment.

Thus, we have created a special Fund for Academic Medicine, and ask that you consider becoming a friend to the Fund. You can become a friend by pledging as little as $1000 to be fulfilled over a period up to 3 years. Please review the attached pledge sheet which explains giving options.

With traditional corporate support diminishing annually and the overall diminution of federal and other monies previously targeted to support medical research, SSCI feels a unique responsibility to respond by attempting to grow charitable support from our membership and from other gifts from individuals. I would be profoundly grateful for your participation in this effort.

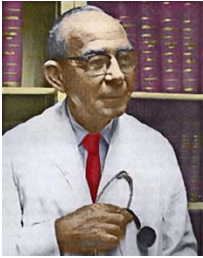

A portion of all proceeds will be allotted to ensure the availability of travel awards that make participation in our key annual meeting possible for so many fellows and junior faculty. Other monies will be used to increase merit awards for junior investigators. It is our hope that we can increase both support for career development, and awareness and identification of SSCI as an organization that plays an integral role in the creation of the next generation of highly trained and credentialed physician-scientists.

If we can enroll 100 Friends of the Fund by the time of our annual meeting in February, then I will be pleased to host a special donor recognition dinner in celebration of an impressive, expanded commitment on the part of SSCI members to foster career development.

Like you, I constantly have to juggle the priorities of my personal philanthropy. Choosing SSCI is an easy choice, though, its mission and impact essential to a cause near to my heart, and perhaps yours. Please don't hesitate to contact me with any questions. I look forward to hearing from you, and to moving our Society's mission forward through this important opportunity.

With all good wishes for the Holiday Season,

Jim Oates, M.D.
President
